

Panel Discussion "Security In Today's World" Gains International Attention By Colombian Senator Maria Fernanda Cabal

Growing concern for security at schools garners the attention of Colombian Senator Maria Fernanda Cabal and prompts her to attend panel discussion in Miami

MIAMI, FLORIDA, UNITED STATES, August 19, 2016 /EINPresswire.com/ -- – In light of recent events all over our country we see the increasing need to take safety measures to ensure we are both protected and prepared to handle violent attacks domestically. For decades the US has always been a beacon of hope to countries around the world for being a safe haven from violence. In so many countries the world over, governments have been dealing with keeping a watchful eye against attacks with guns and bombs. It is common place for them to see armed police in public places standing at the ready. For so long we have benefited from a sense of security that the thought of someone carrying out a fully armed attack on public schools was something inconceivable.

We now find ourselves at a time in our nation's history where we are behind the rest of the world in being able to provide adequate security and protection to our children. Seeing what has recently transpired in Aventura, West Palm Beach, Fort Hood, Sandy Hook, Boston, San Bernardino, and Orlando, this timely and relevant panel discussion will address the state of security in today's world and provide guidance on what can be done, by the government as well as the private sector. Panelists will present their viewpoint on our security from a national and local perspective including our school systems and will take questions at the end of the presentation.

The importance of school safety and the topic of this panel discussion prompted Colombian Senator Maria Fernanda Cabal to plan her flight to Miami so she may attend the discussion. She hopes to learn how highly trained military officials and government representatives strategize how to plan and prepare for armed attacks on schools.
