The heavily-guarded fortress where the show was filmed is expected to increase in tourism globally from this new release. The newly remastered trailers of content are now being streamed for mobile devices at USArewind.com . The motion pictures capture how Brooks Financial & Entertainment Consultants helped launch or promote U.S. Women's Soccer and U.S. Men's Field Hockey into the United States. The hi-definition exclusive interviews include Team USA Champion, Otto Steffers, and Gold Medalist Hall of Fame inductee, Julie Foudy. The anniversary filming of the Centennial Games freezes the exact moment in time of Shon Brooks learning to be a Superhero.

As evidenced by previous shows, I know that the interviews Shon Brooks conducts with our new director, Benita Fitzgerald, and several of our athletes will be professional and fair.

Colette Duncan, Associate Director at the United States Olympic Committee

The "Making A Difference" show, produced by Shon Brooks and broadcasted on Cox Media and Time Warner television stations received an editorial excellence award. The high-definition broadcast displays the determination of a future Hall of Fame Gold Medalist, a future Olympic Champion, and a future Superhero. Colette Duncan, Associate Director at the United States Olympic Committee said, "The staff and athletes of the Arco Olympic Training are pleased to appear on the Making A Difference television show this season. As evidenced by previous shows, I know that the interviews Shon Brooks conducts with our new director, Benita Fitzgerald, and several of our athletes will be professional and fair. Good luck on your upcoming season." The "Making A Difference", Golden Footage, has increased in value due to the demand in American broadcast rights for the Summer and Winter Games. The sponsorship has escalated by the billions.

All television content and American broadcasting rights of Making A Difference is owned by Brooks Entertainment Inc. The brand continues to gain momentum in creating a new television network on Contour TV distributed by Cox Media.
