

Passing The Bigfoot Baton Expedition Summary

Bigfoot Project Investments Inc continues to search for proof to present to the public.

REDWOOD CITY, CALIFORNIA, UNITED STATES, August 20, 2016 /EINPresswire.com/ -- July 5, 2016 was the start of the historical expedition with the team assembling in Arizona to visit the White Mountain Apache reservation for research. The team met with several of the tribal members who had various stories of sightings of the creature. With a tv crew joining the team to document the search the team surveyed various locations and renewed friendships from those who had appeared in the Bigfoot Lives documentary years before.

The expedition experienced significant challenges this year in the form of mosquitoes that could possibly be carrying Zeta, ticks that could be carrying lime disease, and poisonous snakes of various kinds and let's not forget chiggers, other challenges were the very hostile inclement weather in the form of a heat wave that spread across the nation. The expedition team determined that due to the extreme heat the creature as any other intelligent being would be seeking cooler climate and migrating in a different pattern than a normal weather season would dictate.

The expedition then set their sights on New Hampshire to investigate a very active location with several sightings and various stories. The team did have some activity when the area was baited but unfortunately were not able to catch any images of the creature.

The Creature exists and we want to prove it to the public.”

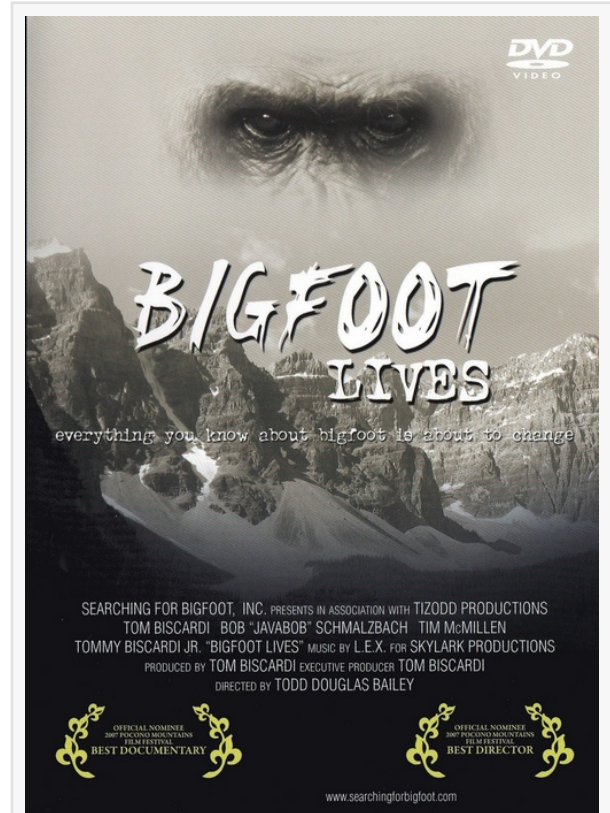

The Bigfoot Team

Another high point of the expedition was the exhibit opening at the Bell County Historical Society Museum in Middlesboro Kentucky. The team spent the day giving tours and lectures about the various equipment used and sharing their experiences of the search for this elusive creature. Many of the items on exhibit are evidence collected in the state of Kentucky including a matching set of prints and hair samples.

From Kentucky to Mississippi to Texas to Montana and all parts in between, with the team driving across the country attracting attention wherever they stopped. Many sightings were reported and various sites were investigated with the team members surveying the area and implementing the bait and cameras to maximize the coverage.

As always on these excursions the team was in the information gathering mode. Many things have been discovered about this mysterious creature and many things still are yet to be discovered. The team was able to make use of drones equipped with thermal imaging cameras in their research which allowed them to cover much more ground than ever before. This type of research will be incorporated in future expeditions allowing areas to be explored in more depth and more thoroughly which should result in even more evidence to provide the public.

Another exciting development was the discussions regarding the building of a hotel/restaurant/museum at Glacier Park Montana by the area known as "Bigfoot alley". This facility would have 90 rooms, a restaurant with a cocktail lounge and an entire floor dedicated to Bigfoot. The Bigfoot museum will showcase the evidence that the company has amassed and procured over the years. Bigfoot Alley is the ideal spot for the team to provide live expeditions to the public for the purpose of researching and finding the creature. Tom Biscardi has been researching Bigfoot for nearly 50 years. With the Paterson/Gimlin film inspiring him to conduct his own research. Unfortunately, The team has determined through painstaking research that the inspiring film is in fact a hoax that has been perpetrated on the Bigfoot industry for nearly half a century. The documentary "Hoax of the Century" details the research and findings of the team.

The conclusion to the research conducted this year resulted in finding that almost all Native American tribes have legends about this mysterious creature. A common thread was discovered in Native American lore, many of the tribes related that Bigfoot is not just a physical being he can also be a spirit guide and depending on the person having the experience a sighting can be a good thing or a bad thing. In essence they live on a different plain of existence. The people that have the sightings are able to see the creature because they are in tune with the creature.

Also during the six weeks that the expedition was in progress the back office was working diligently to establish release dates of the movie Pursuit that was produced in December 2014 and will be available electronically on Amazon Prime. Itunes, VUDU and google, September 23rd. The company was issued a ticker symbol BGFT and is in the process of implementing the market plan that most potential stockholders have seen in the SEC filings.
