Rock music fans may be excited to get involved with a new Kickstarter campaign by Matt Parker and the Deacons. The band is planning to launch a new album by January 2017.

August 12, 2016, Myrtle Beach, SC – A Kickstarter campaign has been launched by South Carolina rock group Matt Parker and the Deacons. The band hopes to raise sufficient funds to help its members release a new album in January 2017.

With Matt Parker as lead singer, Robin Rotondo on guitar and James Poindexter on drums, the band has built a loyal following in Myrtle Beach and the surrounding areas in South Carolina and beyond. The band's music is comparable to some of the most innovative garage bands of the 1990s, with clear influences of some of today's most popular alternative sounds mixed in with a bit of funk and blues. Matt Parker and the Deacons are known for performing in numerous venues around Myrtle Beach, giving high-energy concerts on a polished, professional level.

Now, the band hopes to expand its fan base, as well as to reach its established friends and original fans, by delivering an album full of new originals in a professional recording studio. Parker, Rotondo and Poindexter have already secured the services of Myrtle Beach producer Brian McKenzie, and just need the help of a few rock music fans to turn this plan into a reality. With the dedicated support of friends and fans, Matt Parker and the Deacons promise to deliver more of the energetic, soulful and passionate music that their loyal fan base has already come to appreciate.

Recording is just around the corner, starting in September, and the band could not be more excited to get in the studio and create some original sound. About Matt Parker and the Deacons

Matt Parker and the Deacons (MPD) is a dynamic trio whose name represents the leader and the band's musical authenticity. As church deacons hold the mystery of faith in pure conscience, similarly, MPD hold the mystery of music. They are true ministers of music whose style is an eclectic mix of bluesy alternative, funk, and melodic rock with hints of soul. They are also extremely unique in that MPD do not use tracks, loopers or any other audible fabrications to back them up. All of their sound is 100% authentic and live.
