RED WING, MN, UNITED STATES, September 1, 2016 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Red Wing Stoneware & Pottery, Red Wing Minnesota, has announced it is soliciting prospective buyers for its business and real estate holdings. The iconic brand, established in 1877, has a reputation for high quality, collectible stoneware and pottery and a tradition of providing the highest quality products both regionally and internationally. Located on the Mississippi River between Minneapolis/St Paul and Rochester Minnesota, the Company is rich in culture and history and draws collectors and visitors from around the world.

In 1877, Red Wing Stoneware Company, a forerunner of today's famous Red Wing Stoneware and Pottery was established. The company originally supplied area farmers with stoneware crocks, jars, churns, bowls and jugs for food and beverage storage. During the 20th Century, Red Wing Stoneware became one of the largest pottery companies in the United States and introduced numerous lines of art pottery which became highly sought after, collectible pieces. Today, Red Wing Stoneware and Pottery is bustling with activity in the clay industry. Four kilns are fired on a regular basis producing a wide variety of everyday and collectible items.

Tom Baker, CCIM, Senior Director of KW Commercial Midwest, has been exclusively contracted to represent Red Wing Stoneware & Pottery in the sale of its business and real estate. The portfolio includes real estate, inventory, stoneware & pottery equipment, supplies, work in process, intellectual
