

FACTUALLY-BASED MOVIE to Help for the Future

Factually-Researched Movie - "It's scary" are the words heard about the future. Couple learns to strengthen themselves for standing through what is ahead.

WISCONSIN RAPIDS, WISCONSIN, UNITED STATES, September 6, 2016 /EINPresswire.com/ -- This is the story of an average young couple finding information to get stronger for the world ahead. Bob, Emily and their young daughter move past different perceptions and learn what will help them in many ways. Setting new goals while dealing with a changing world takes place in this movie.

What to do in facing the "scary" world ahead is Emily's anxiety. She searches frantically, but can't find answers. Bob works very hard and has many past and present problems including his work hours going down, a dangerous job and a jealous co-worker constantly bothering and threatening to get him. He escapes into the garage and his dream of someday owning his own business. The last thing he wants to hear about are world problems. Though Bob and Emily love each other, they are on a collision course, and little Julie feels the tension.

Emily's meltdown and other family situations force Bob into making decisions he doesn't want to take. He half-heartedly starts working with his wife on a search for solutions.

Many other lives intertwined with theirs are also moving in new directions. Teen frustrations, elder needs and professionals compelled to provide assistance are related here.

Looking at physical, spiritual and emotional needs, this biopic movie provides answers for questions being asked today on how to prepare for what is coming. For example, knowing what God wants and how to deal with fear are strongly addressed. With both events and solutions professionally researched, "Our Directions" is for today, about what we are all experiencing now, and will be in upcoming days.

This biopic also includes statements by the following:

- Captain Chesley Sullenberger
- Sten Odenwald of NASA's IMAGE Satellite Program
- Michael MacCracken of the Climate Institute
- US Government Accountability Office

Works by Authors:

"Our Directions" is depicting reality in the truest sense possible. The movie is to help people everywhere.
