The analysts forecast the global natural gas refueling stations market to grow at a CAGR of 4.02% during the period 2016-2020.

Many countries are using a combination of the available measures to curb emissions and improve energy security. One such measure is switching to natural gas. Some of the potential benefits of using natural gas in the transport sector are:

- Cost reduction
- GHG emission savings
- Air quality improvement
- Energy security

Natural gas can be used in the forms of CNG and LNG. It can also be used in different modes of transport such as rail, road, off-road, marine, and in aviation.

The refueling is done from a CNG and LNG refueling station, similar to that of gasoline and diesel refueling stations. CNG stations are of two types, fast-fill and time-fill.
