PUNE, MAHARASHTRA, INDIA, September 27, 2016 /EINPresswire.com/
-- Market Synopsis of Global Military Vetronics

The Global Military Vetronics Market is expected to grow at a CAGR of around 7% during 2016-2021. The key factors driving the growth are modernization of military ground vehicles, low cost per mile military ground vehicle to reduce ownership cost, reduction of weight, size, and power consumption (SWaP) of electronics in military vehicles to expand internal space for accommodation and ammunition reserves.

As per the MRFR analysis, cooling technologies within military land vehicles, challenges with SBC computing capability, and limited on-vehicle network scope are the key factors restraining the market growth.

Key factors driving the market growth are modernization of military ground vehicles, low cost per mile military ground vehicle to reduce ownership cost, reduction of weight,size, and power consumption”

Market Research Future

C3 systems demand is highest in North America and Europe, owing to growth in demand for military land vehicles systems with next generation vetronics systems. Also in APAC, rise in demand of technologically advanced military land vehicles and rise in defense spending in India and China is one of the major factors driving the market.
