

Winter Expedition Starts This Month Researching Creature Attacks and Killings

Venturing into uncharted territory the "Godfather" has sorted through the horrific and almost beyond belief legends that have surfaced to determine the route.

REDWOOD CITY, CA, UNITED STATES, October 7, 2016 /EINPresswire.com/ -- The expedition team consisting of Tom Biscardi Sr. (The Godfather of Bigfoot Hunters) his son Tommy Jr. known as "TJ" and his grandson Tommy and other team members will start their six week winter expedition on October 10th. A historical team of three generations of Biscardi will unite for one purpose, the pursuit of this elusive creature. The legendary team has taken the time to listen to the reports, research the locations and plot the current migratory path of the elusive primate know as Bigfoot. Due to the exciting and disturbing reports the Godfather of Bigfoot Hunters (Tom Biscardi, Sr.) has been compelled to again join the team. Tom Biscardi Sr. has earned the title Godfather of Bigfoot Hunters by continuing to investigate by sorting through the minutia to find likely sites to explore and venture into the wilderness seeking evidence of the creature's existence from the early 1970's through today.

On a historical note, one of the first documented sightings (in recently documented times) was recorded by Teddy Roosevelt during a hunting expedition. Those nineteenth century hunters never could have imagined the equipment that the team will be using to locate and document this creature.

This year has been an epic year for the company with the museum exhibit in Middlesboro, Kentucky, the TV news spots in Texas, North Carolina and New Hampshire, and many news stories in various newspapers around the country.

The Godfather of Bigfoot himself is setting off into uncharted territories. The team will be venturing to the utmost regions of the pacific northwest. Tom and the team have been researching reports of brutal creature attacks as well as killings. The Godfather has been harboring these stories for the past year and sorting through the reports of various sightings as well as horrific and almost beyond belief legends that have surfaced.

The three main First Nation tribes in the region all respect and worship the creature in their own ways. Due to the location, the Godfather will continue to establish relationships of mutual respect and understanding with the tribes that are experiencing the disturbing stories that have come to light in the past year. Tom has established these type of relationships with many First Nation tribes, Navajo, Blackfeet, Apache, Ojibwe, Cherokee, Choctaw, Cree, Seminole, Sioux, Chippewa and various other tribes.

One of the main stops along the route will be East Glacier Park where the company is embarking in a mutually beneficial project with businessman and entrepreneur, Bill Stewart and family who anticipates breaking ground in the spring of 2017 for a one of a kind "Bigfoot" museum, housed in a hotel spa, restaurant and lounge facility. The team is in the discussion stage of establishing a thriving community of avid researchers in that area.

This area is also known as "Bigfoot Alley" due to the plethora of stories that have accumulated throughout the years. The terrain allows many types of migratory animals to move from the northern region to southern and vice versa according to the seasons. According to past research the creature stays at the northern tree-lines to avoid detection. Traveling along the mountain ranges also provides migration routes that are seldom traveled by man.

With the new thermal imaging and drone equipment the team will be using they are hopeful of finding and documenting more than just footprints during this expedition. The team has the utmost respect for the beliefs of the First Nation tribes that hold the territory the creature is migrating through and will endeavor to explore the area in the most non-invasive ways possible with the drone surveillance and thermal imaging as primary tools for gathering evidence.
