

Psychologist Creates App to Help you Avoid Bad Relationships

CompataAPP-essential for people who are dating, about to date or in relationships to identify individuals who are nasty, difficult or potentially dangerous.

FRANKSTON, VICTORIA, AUSTRALIA, October 12, 2016 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Relationship breakdown is a major issue in society. Many end disastrously because of nasty or difficult partners.

CompataAPP provides essential information that assists people who are dating, about to date or are in relationships to easily identify individuals who are nasty, difficult or potentially dangerous.

Too frequently there are headlines in the media regarding the tragic consequences of actions perpetrated by difficult partners.

These individuals make life extremely unpleasant for their partners. Some of these people are capable of, and given the chance will:

- Sap your energy and enjoyment of life.
- Make you feel frustrated and trapped.
- Control and manipulate you.
- Make you depressed.
- Undermine you self-esteem and self-confidence.

- Use you and gain financial reward at your expense.
- Cut you off from family and friends.
- Cheat on you.
- Or lead to more severe consequences

We have developed an App - "CompataAPP" - which provides essential information that assists people who are dating, about to date or are in long term relationships to easily identify individuals who are nasty, difficult or potentially dangerous.

- CompataAPP is designed to allow the user to rate and score the behaviours of the person they are dating or in relationship with.
- CompataAPP users can then compare the scores to the treatment they are likely to receive from that person if the relationship becomes long term.
- CompataAPP provides vital information so that informed choices can be made to avoid relationships with unsuitable individuals.

The creators are a highly experienced team that have worked in the fields of business, university, professional sport and a psychologist who has worked with too many people whose lives or those of their family have been shattered by their difficult partners.

Each team member has had experiences with nasty or difficult individuals and have committed to providing pertinent information so that users can protect themselves and their loved ones.
