

What's On Tap? Beer Mapping System for Regional and Micro Brews

Non Crowd Sourced Beer App That Keeps You Informed At All Times

WASHINGTON , DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA , UNITED STATES , October 25, 2016 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Washington, DC- Local start up What's On Tap announced today that it will be starting their Kickstarter campaign on October 25th 2016, Company founders are expecting to revolutionize the way that Craft Beer is found providing a sought after app accurately mapping out where all Craft Beer is sold.

Local bartenders Oscar Andino, Steve Swetlow and Kailey DeLew teamed up with tech outsider Tim Hagerty to launch on Kickstarter to fund What's On Tap, a Micro, Craft Beer location mapping app. They're hoping that their app can finally answer that question, "Where can I find that beer?"

The Kickstarter campaign will enable the group to launch their app within the Washington DC area providing a boost to local DC breweries by connecting local Craft beer with Craft Beer lovers.

About What's On Tap

The What's On Tap App is an easy to follow mapping app available on both Apple iOS and Android devices. Users of the app can now conduct a search of a specific beer, beer category or brewery and is presented a localized map of bars, taverns and retailers selling the beers searched for.

What's On Tap VP Oscar Andino says, "Gone are the days of guessing where to find your favorite local beers. We're exposing where to purchase all Craft Beers and we're launching our app right here in Washington DC."
