Reasons to Purchase this report:

Coiled tubing is a cost effective solution for various applications across drilling, completions, and work over operations for an oil well. The market for coiled tubing services had contracted significantly, on account of the prolonged oil price decline since mid-2014.

Considerable supply excess had been a major factor resulting into the plummeting oil prices. However, the recent price stabilization as well as changing dynamics of oil producing countries has instigated a positive outlook for the upstream oil & gas services market.
