Market Scenario:

Micro-pumps are essential components to controlling and modulating fluidic flow in microfluidic networks. They are responsible for generating temporal and volumetric fluid movement on-chip and are used to reduce the amount of external hardware necessary to operate a microfluidic device. They are used to move a liquid or gas (fluid) from one location to another. Inkjet printers, blood analyzers, and implantable insulin delivery systems are a few examples of where micro-pumps are currently used. Micro-pumps are being developed due to their reduced dimensions and can be used in vivo or internal to the pump. They also have the ability to handle extremely small volumes of liquid very efficiently.

Segments:

The Major Key Players are ,IDEX Corporation (US),Xavitech,Alldoo Micropump (China),Servoflo Corporation,Bio-Chem Fluidics,TOPS Industry & Technology Co. Ltd."

Market Research Future

Global micro-pumps market has been segmented on the basis of types which comprises of Mechanical, Non-Mechanical and others. On the basis of application, market is classified into drug delivery, biomedical, infusion and others. On the basis of end users, market is segmented into Hospitals, Clinics, Diagnostic centers and others.
