WiseGuyReports.Com Publish a New Market Research Report On –“Radar Systems and Technology 2016 Global Market Expected to Grow at CAGR 3.43% and Forecast to 2020”.

The analysts forecast the global radar systems and technology market to grow at a CAGR of 3.43% during the period 2016-2020.

Since World War II, the defense forces are using different radar systems and technologies to detect and track insights and information. Radars determine range, angle, and velocity of an object. They are also used to map and locate weather conditions for the army, air force, and naval operations.

Receivers and transmitters are vital components of a radar system since radio waves and signals are used to locate the requisites. Spacecraft, aircraft, ships, and vehicles are some of the principal employers of radar technology.

In the modern battlefield, drones are being increasingly recognized as a valuable tool. They have not only helped in reducing mortality ratio in defense troops but also the operational costs required for intelligence, surveillance, and reconnaissance (ISR) missions. Such drones are equipped with payloads including radars for gathering critical information, which in turn, is contributing immensely to the market. Also, the introduction of 3D radar has reduced human efforts by measuring elevation, weather condition, and providing surveillance capabilities through a single machine. Cost-effective systems have been a concern for the military market, which has hindered the growth of passive radar. It reduces the operational cost by using electromagnetic signals from third party or commercial frequencies.
