Real estate developers Real Caribe crowdsource design for stunning modern condos in Santo Domingo

FORT LAUDERDALE, FLORIDA, USA, November 11, 2016 /EINPresswire.com/ -- International property development team Real Caribe recently leveraged new crowd technology to source the best designs and talent in the world when creating the newest project in the Dominican Republic.

Utilizing crowdsourcing platform arcbazaar the firm ran an international competition to design the architecture for the company's latest luxury apartment tower in Santo Domingo, Dominican Republic. To compliment the beautiful structure, interior designers were brought in from Italy. The current global Investor experience team now includes local Dominican representatives, property management professionals with a solid track record in Dubai and Miami, and agents of Keller Williams, the largest real estate brokerage in the world.

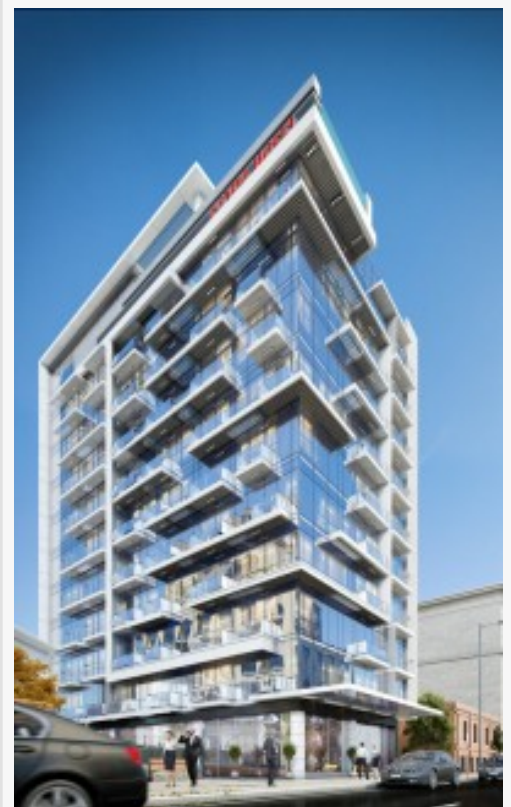

Antonio Naddeo of Real Caribe says, "Out of 30 competitors for the Central Suites Tower we selected an exceptional Egyptian architect, whose design complimented our accomplished team's interior plans." The spectacular glass tower features a rooftop infinity pool and sun deck, gym, high tech business center, and more.

As of November 1st, 2016 the construction of Central Suites has risen to the third floor. Completion is expected in 2017. This is Real Caribe's second project in the trendy southwest Santo Domingo neighborhood of Piantini.

Real Caribe is the Antilles division of Real Capital Ventures. Not only has the firm leveraged the new connected economy to bring together the best architectural designs, construction teams, and interior designers from around the world, it is now opening up the opportunity to participate in this innovative project to international investors. The majority of units were instantly snapped up by European investors and past clients of Real Capital Ventures. Now the final 40 units are being released for sale in the U.S. through a new master agent, Rosa Arreaga-Houghten of Keller Williams Realty Naples.

The sleek modern apartments with views start at less than $100,000 USD. Price increases are expected for the final units. They may be purchased for personal use, semi-personal use, or as pure investments. On-site property management utilizes video and PropertyWare software for 24/7 transparency into status of units, construction, and income produced, remotely.
