

Excess Comfort bedding introduces solution for couples

Makes sheet sets and blankets wider on the head end to help keep both covered

SAN BRUNO, CALIFORNIA, USA, November 14, 2016 /EINPresswire.com/ --

San Bruno, CA. November 14, 2016: After struggling over the covers in bed with his wife for years, Excess Comfort® bedding founder, Richard Breneman, decided a change was needed. Richard made custom sheets and blankets 36" wider on the head end and solved their problem. They worked so well, he was inspired to bring this solution to market for others to enjoy. Excess Comfort bedding launched their online store on May 12, 2016.

"We are proud to bring our unique products from concept to market," said Richard. "These products have made a difference in our lives and are now available to others. We offer an improved sleeping experience through our unique, patented design, and quality fabrics. If we can make a difference in people's lives by improving their sleeping experience, we have done our part".

Excess Comfort bedding spent many months securing manufacturers who could custom make their products and offer a wide range of premium quality fabrics. "We were finally able to partner with manufacturers who produce for premium brands and specialty retailers, ensuring premium quality products for our customers," said Richard.

Excess Comfort bedding brings fashion and style together with functionality. Excess Comfort bedding blankets feature reversible weave patterns, providing decorative options as top covers during the warmer months. The Company's sheet sets are available in both percale and sateen weaves, all in solids.
