Gender Discrimination

- Gender Discrimination happens when an employee is treated differently because of their gender.
- Examples of gender discrimination are when you are paid less, or disregarded for some employment position or benefit, because of your sex.
- Gender discrimination laws exist to level the playing field in the workforce and ensure that there is equal treatment and equal pay for equal work.
- Read more at <https://firedme.com>

Race Discrimination

- Employers break the law when they discriminate against employees because of race, color, national origin, or ancestry.
- Race discrimination often times results in loss of employment or opportunities.
- It can also have a serious impact on people due to the emotional distress that usually accompanies this horrible mistreatment.
- No one should have to suffer from discrimination at work.
- Read more at <https://firedme.com>

Age Discrimination

- Age discrimination is illegal under the California Fair Employment and Housing Act, as well as the federal Age Discrimination in Employment Act.
- Age discrimination can be seen as different treatment of an employee because he or she is over 40 years of age.
- This kind of discrimination may be demonstrated by employee policies or actions that favor younger employees in regard to promotion, compensation, scheduling, hiring and firing.
- It may also occur in conjunction with disability discrimination and harassment.

Retaliation & Wrongful Termination

- To establish a case of retaliation, you must show that:
  1. You engaged in a protected activity;
  2. Your employer subjected you to an adverse employment action; and
  3. The protected activity and the employer's adverse action were connected.
- A written complaint is the best way to protect your case.
