STERLING HEIGHTS, MICHIGAN, USA, November 18, 2016 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Inspiration can lead to magnificent outcomes. Though not always present, clear or easily identified, individuals and leaders alike are all in need of inspiration to achieve their ultimate goals. In the business world, leaders need to keep their staff stimulated, enthused and motivated in order to reach the company's mission. On the personal side, it's all too often that we lose sight of our individual dreams and aspirations. With a wealth of personal and professional experience, Cathy Mott of CWC Leadership Development, LLC has led many leaders, organizations and individuals to find and redefine their true purpose, meaning and vision.

Certified Executive/Life Coach from the International Coach Federation and Social & Emotional Coach certified from the Institute for Social & Emotional Intelligence; Cathy is also a wife, mother and business professional, who admittedly, hit a snag and lost her identity for a time. Without any professional guidance, Cathy was able to identify what was lacking and regain control of her own destiny. With this personal victory, she was determined to help others that were stuck in a similar mindset and realized this limiting mindset affects everyone and everything involved.

We are all leaders in life! It's never too late to reach your full potential.

Cathy Mott

In 2009, Cathy began coaching and assisting individuals, groups and leaders within a large organization, which eventually led to her “taking her talent on the road” coaching executives. Her growing client base is a genuine indicator of how effective her services are as she's notably trained thousands and worked with mid-large organizations in such industries as Healthcare, Education, Government, Automotive, Retail and Philanthropy. Cathy's hands-on approach includes meeting with leadership, the staff, getting a feel for the organization's culture and strategizing openly with her clients. This allows her to craft a truly client-specific program that enables the most desired outcomes to be attained.

Leadership development, culture change, employee engagement, conflict resolution, emotional intelligence and a variety of assessments are all part of Cathy's interactive programs that will bring about genuine and long-lasting results.
