/EINPresswire.com/ --

The analysts forecast the global maritime security market to grow at a CAGR of 6.27% during the period 2016-2020.

Maritime security is related to the protection of ports and harbors, coastal facilities, vessels, and port critical infrastructure from sabotage and terrorism. It includes advanced technologies to detect hazards and communicate with marine authorities to combat potential threats.

Maritime activities continue to broaden beyond the international transport of goods, fishing and aquaculture, recreation and tourism, and extraction of non-renewable marine-based resources. The maritime industry is facing a number of serious threats — such as terrorist attacks, environmental destruction, illegal seaborne immigration, transactional crimes, and piracy — that not only disrupt international trade but also cause political unrest, making the adoption of maritime security crucial for marine authorities.
