PUNE, INDIA, December 8, 2016
/EINPresswire.com/ --

The analysts forecast the global military biometrics market to grow at a CAGR of 7.5% during the period 2016-2020.

Over the last decade, there has been an increase in the number of insurgent and criminal activities and attacks across the globe. This has prompted the governments of a majority of the countries to invest considerably in enhancing the surveillance and monitoring systems through the purchase of new biometric equipment and related technologies. In addition, the growing instability in certain regions has led to high migration of people from Middle Eastern countries like Syria and Iraq to EMEA and North American regions. To address the issue, defense and homeland security ministries of countries are improving their border security systems by installing new fingerprint, facial, and iris recognition systems to help identify any suspect or terrorist entering the country. Hence, the defense ministries are rapidly adopting and implementing biometrics in several areas, including identity checks during border control, drug and human trafficking, criminal investigations, and others such as jail management.
