54 Years Later Lost History Revealed--Lance Reventlow Cobra Gets It's Due Respect.

KNOXVILLE, TN, USA, December 16, 2016 /EINPresswire.com/ -- 54 years ago, our world was a different place. With the constant changing turbulent times of the 60's and baby boomers making their mark, hot cars became a revolution of change. No longer did a performance car buyer have to hop up his showroom-bought Muscle Car to make it faster. Carroll Shelby had the answer; "COBRA". A fire breathing tire frying torque monster that became the fastest 1/4 mile production car of the 60's and dominated road racing tracks across the nation.

The COBRA legend lives on today, through important Cobra cars like the Lance Reventlow Cobra. Reventlow was known as a rich playboy race car driver who gave us the Scarab race car and also had the components in place to help launch Carroll Shelby to fame and fortune. You can read more about this at <https://www.mecum.com/lots/FL0117-269413/1962-shelby-cobra-roadster/> where on Jan. 13th, 2017 the Lance Reventlow Cobra will be offered up for auction by the world famous Mecum Auctions.

After 2 years of painstaking research by Tony Begley and Randy Paddock (of ClassicMuscleCars.com and MuscleCarClub.com), they lifted the veil of lost history in an informative website; csx2032.com, that chronicles the cars long over due history. Thanks to their research, the Lance Reventlow Cobra is now one of the most documented Cobras in the world other than CSX2000. CSX2000 was the first Shelby built, it sold for the first time since it was built, Aug. 2016 and set a new world record price of $13.75 million. Mecum has set a conservative estimate on CSX2032 of 1.1 to 1.3 million that could wind up being the deal of the their Kissimmee, FL auction 2017. This special historic Cobra will only rise in value over time. It's still history in the making.
