

Conference Will Explore Infrastructure Contracting Opportunities Under Trump

Follow the Dollar: Infrastructure 2017

WASHINGTON, D.C., USA, December 19, 2016 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Nothing in President-elect Donald Trump's agenda will loom as large as his commitment to revitalize the infrastructure.

President Trump will focus on Water, Energy and Transportation--the cornerstones of economic development."

Llewellyn King, Host-White House Chronicle

Some projects will get going through congressional appropriations while others will get their start by eliminating impediments -- such as authorizing the Keystone Pipeline -- and easing a broad array of federal regulations and stipulations.

The conference, Infrastructure 2017, will examine contracting opportunities on a granular level:

Attendees will learn:

Where the RFPs can be expected to come from

How the states will fit into federal plans

What projects will move forward because of eased permitting

Which industries will have the most to gain, e.g. architect-engineering, concrete, direct current power lines, heavy equipment, pipe supply, steel, water

How much emphasis will be on public/private partnerships

How important tax relief will be

What will be the marquee projects

What will the structure of the border look like, and who will design, build and subcontract such an enormous project

You'll be learning from a faculty of administration speakers, industry analysts, proposal writers,

Washington lobbyists and congressmen who will be appropriating the funds.

When: April 3-4, 2017

Where: 1900 K Street, NW, Washington, D.C.,
Founders Conference Room, Dentons US LLP
