

CFI Launches Free Excel Crash Course for Finance Professionals

Lessons, Interactions Give Users Real-World Situations For Better Comprehension and Mastery of Excel Formulas and Functions

NEW YORK, NY, USA, December 20, 2016 /EINPresswire.com/ -- CFI, a leading provider of online-based corporate finance courses and certifications, has launched a free Excel Crash Course that includes 39 intense lessons and interactions for users to understand and master formulas for financial modeling.

The tutorial features real-world investment banking training developed over the past decade with co-founding partner MDA Training.

“Our students and finance professionals have been asking for more in-depth training with Excel, and we’re excited to deliver it to them in a super practical and interactive format,” said Tim Vipond, lead instructor for CFI’s Excel Crash Course.

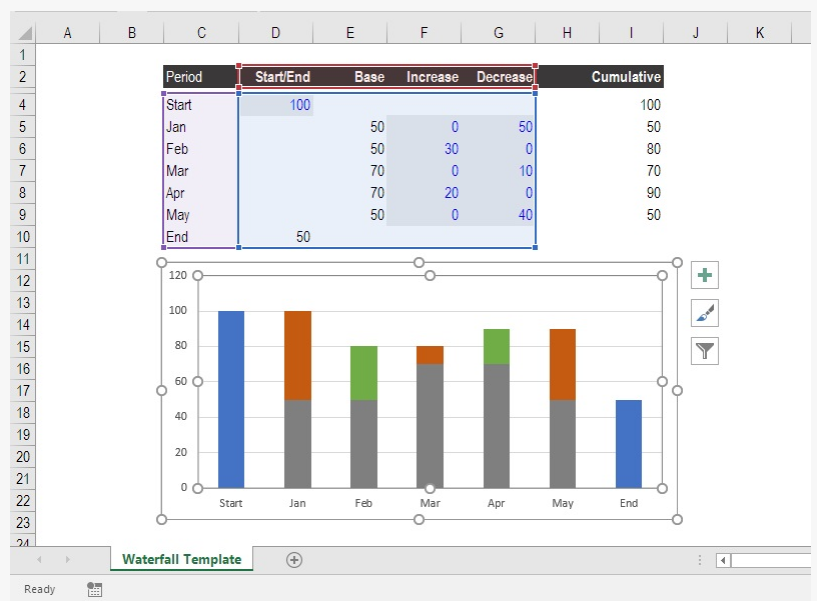

“It takes significant practice to master Excel functions and formulas, so we’ve made the course into a real-life scenario that leads students through a piece of financial analysis they can work through at their own pace.”

This real-world approach is unique since most other courses teach Excel formulas one at a time, and without context. CFI’s class is designed to take learners through an entire piece of financial analysis from start to finish, learning formulas as they go.

“We’ve studied and analyzed countless other Excel courses from the competition and saw a real opportunity to make the course more engaging, practical, and most importantly, relevant to people’s careers,” said Vipond. “Our course will give learners all the tools, tips and tricks they need to hit the ground running for a career on Wall Street or anywhere in corporate finance.”
