PUNE, INDIA, December 23, 2016 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Global Flexible Plastic Packaging Market

Flexible plastics are a category of plastics that are thin, light, and easily stretchable but yet retain the barrier properties and tear and puncture resistant characteristics, which is why they are used to make packaging products. They are also chemically inert, cheap, and visually appealing, which enhances the brand appeal of the product that they are used to pack. Generally they are used to pack non-durable and fast moving unit loads and have limited bulk industrial use with the exception of FIBCs.
