

Flipbook Software from Mobissue Makes Mobile Publishing Never Easier

For the mobile publishing, Mobissue makes it simple with a digital cloud platform which is mobile friendly.

HONGKONG, CHINA, December 30, 2016 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Creating content and digitally publishing it over mobile devices and tablets can be expected to take a whole new turn as Mobissue, the leading digital content publishing platform provider, has presented its page flip software with numerous amazing features. Features like personal portfolio creation, its advertising system and many more are expected to make digital content creation and publication much easier for all mobile device users.

Reportedly, the page flip software from Mobissue comes with certain features which seemed like an ardent need for all the users, especially for usage over mobile devices and tablets. The software provides the option for users to create their personal portfolio homepage and share the content with a personal touch. Users can design their portfolio homepage using the custom banners and can add their profile picture for a professional look.

Additionally, adding one more unique feature to the list, Mobissue, the professional magazine maker allows users to create and publish their collection of creations in the form of a newsstand. This has been made possible by the cloud storage on which the whole software works. This newsstand can then be easily shared over mobile devices and can showcase the complete collection in one go.

The company representatives also stated that their software comes with its own advertisement system allowing users to create and present ads for their issues in a separate pop-up window. These ads are easily editable as per user's choice without having to re-create them all over again. Further, it also allows users to manage all their contacts or subscribers from a single interface thereby making subscriber management much simpler for all.

Company CEO, Winston Zhang, was confident about the ease and improvements this software can provide for all its users to create and publish content, especially for mobile devices as he stated, "The Mobissue page flip software has been created with keeping our end users and their comfort in mind. This software is a game changer in digital content publication and will be a boon for all users."
