The analysts forecast the global laser market to grow at a CAGR of 5.65% during the period 2017-2021.

Laser refers to light amplification by stimulated emission of radiation, which produces a coherent, collimated, and monochromatic beam of light by exciting atoms to a higher energy level. Lasers are distinguished from other light sources by their coherence. Spatial coherence property of laser enables it to stay narrow over great distances and allows it to be focused on a tight spot. As a result of these properties, they are widely used in applications such as laser pointers, laser cutting, and lithography. Lasers are classified based on the type of lasing medium they use such as gas, optical fiber, solid state, and semiconductor.
