The SDR Show Welcomes Rock Icon Gene Simmons!
The Man with the Wicked Tongue Reveals the Name of His Organ

NEW YORK (January 16, 2017) — New York City's wildest podcast, The SDR Show, hosted by radio personality Ralph Sutton and comedian Big Jay Oakerson welcomed their biggest guest to date, the one and only Gene Simmons, in a raucous, one-hour interview where he revealed the two names for his infamous penis, Morgan (as in Morgan the Organ) and Winston (because Winston tastes so good), told a string of Michael Jackson jokes, claimed most rock stars aren't bright and why KISS will probably never make another album.

"People have convinced themselves they don't wanna pay for stuff and last time I checked, KISS is not a charity," says Simmons. "We're philanthropic but I'll be the one that decides how much I give and where, not some college kid to decide, 'you have enough money, I don't wanna pay for your record.' Make a distinction between commerce and philanthropy. So, the idea of doing another KISS record, unless and if there's a financial model that works, personally I'm not interested in it."

For rock radio personality Ralph Sutton having his idol in-studio was nothing less than a dream come true.

"It's rare to be able to say you had a legend in the studio. Well this week on SDR we got to," says Sutton. "The demon. The God of thunder. Gene Simmons came in, and could not have been cooler."
