

Did Someone Say NEW 60's and 70's Music? - Salvation Rock Music Company Releases Long Awaited Debut Album

There is a new Indie label out of OC which is reaching back to the 60's & 70's for it's sound.

LAGUNA BEACH, CA, USA, January 19, 2017 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Salvation Rock Music Company has released its flagship self-titled debut album. The profile of SRMC is 60's & 70's folk and rock style music with compelling lyrical messages of salvation. Mixing original compositions with re-arranged traditional gospels, the goal of the label is to present the gospel message through music and to have a some fun in the process; hence, the Beatles cover of "A Taste of Honey".

Prior to this, SRMC had released material under various artist strictly as publishing efforts but now it has now teamed up with singer/songwriter/producer Michael Paul Scally ("America's in Trouble" from Michael Paul Scally's "America" album, Salvation Rock Music Company 2012) so the publishing side and the recording side are now both under one roof.

The Album

Filled with a very diverse mix of both electric and folk rock the album touches on a variety of styles. Two of the five original tracks, "Awakening" and the "Great Escape" (which flow together), are epic rock type instrumentals with tympani drums, brass and an orchestra make for a truly powerful and dynamic listening experience. Meanwhile the opening song "The Old Rugged Cross" sang by Edwina Scally is an ethereal track and takes you away. There is also a kid's effort, "God Will Make a Way" and some new teen singers featured on "I've Got Your Number" to balance the album out. Future SRMC albums will involve new singers and songwriters making each album unique and different.

Moving forward the label is currently building a ground-up studio in Orange County, CA where it will produce both music and video.

The album can now be found on iTunes, Amazon, Spotify, Groove Music as well as all other major retailers.
