

GeneMed-2017 Conference Full Program and Speakers' List Unveiled

DALLAS (PLANO), TEXAS, UNITED STATES, February 2, 2017 /EINPresswire.com/ -- International Conference on Genomic Medicine (GeneMed-2017) announces the list of featured speakers who will discuss the genetic and genomic innovations in the field of health and medicine during its three-day conference starting on February 22 at DoubleTree by Hilton Baltimore BWI Airport Hotel, Linthicum, MD.

We are delighted to welcome the world's leading experts to discuss the advances in genomic and genetic screening, clinical applications, ethical and legal policies; and to bridge the gap between current medical treatment and rapidly accelerating genome technology.

C. Thomas Caskey, Baylor College of Medicine, TX, USA
Jenny Taylor, Wellcome Trust Centre for Human Genetics, OX, UK
Jane Houldsworth, Icahn School of Medicine at Mount Sinai, NY, USA
Linda M. S. Resar, The Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine, MD, USA
Krishna Dronamraju, Foundation for Genetic Research, TX, USA
Ying Mu, U. S. Food and Drug Administration, MD, USA
Indraneel Mittra, Tata Memorial Centre, MH, India

Mentioned above are keynote speakers among the other high profile speakers from both academia and industry who will explore the edge of genomic and high-throughput technologies; medical discoveries, and clinical applications; and address the realities of this new genomic era.

GeneMed-2017 consists of 10 tracks and 4 scientific sessions focusing on new developments in the discipline of genomic medicine and genetics including next generation sequencing, sequencing methods in precision and personalized medicine, mechanisms of cancer, complete genomic sequencing in HIV, neuro-degenerative diseases in gene, pharmacogenomics, biomarkers and molecular pathology.
