NEW YORK CITY, NEW YORK, UNITED STATES, February 7, 2017

/EINPresswire.com/ -- Lights. Camera. Action. Tonight, Mr. Custom Made is excited to join The Nylon Project's initiative in aiding the homeless this year at New York Fashion Week. We will be joining celebrities and fashion influencers on the runway all for a great cause where over 1500 meals will be fed to those in need. Celebrities on board include: singer Christina Milian, Peter Madrigal of BRAVO's "Vanderpump Rules", Wé McDonald of Season 11 of "The Voice", Miss New York 2016 Nicole Kulovany, Victoria Secret supermodel Daniela Braga, the FAULKNER band, Che'Nelle, choreographed dance number by Mariah Carey's assistant choreographer G. Madison IV and much more!

Nicole Kulovaney, Christina Milian, Peter Modrigal and Adam Marks will all be in attendance!

Our founder, Adam Marks had a simple vision. To help make custom suits affordable to the majority of people while maintaining the great style and quality of bespoke menswear. In a world where personal brand trumps everything, it has become more important than ever to look the part. Through creating an efficient business model with minimal expense, we have been able to provide incredible quality and style to people from all backgrounds. From our high end clients from world class boxing trainer Floyd Joy Mayweather Sr. and FIBA Basketball Player Brandon Burnett to Real Estate Professionals, Entrepreneurs, people with 9 to 5 jobs and everyone in between, Mr. Custom Made has been able to make custom menswear mainstream to ensure that everyone can take their personal brand to the next level.

Our future goal is simple. To continue to expand throughout the United States and bring technology, fashion and fitness together to make custom menswear the norm while being affordable to people around the country. Our founder has lived by the quote "Fortune favors the BOLD". In a world where there is so much noise, it takes something truly custom to stand out. Our mission is to continue to help make that difference for our clients. You can view our full collection online at
