

Agenda Released for Close Air Support 2017

SMi Group have released the agenda for their highly anticipated Close Air Support conference, coming to London on the 7th and 8th June 2017.

LONDON, UNITED KINGDOM, February 15, 2017 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Close air support remains a core competency that underpins ground operations. For both conventional and asymmetric operations, it is imperative that this vital asset is maintained and built. The opportunities for increased agility, interoperability and combat effectiveness are greater than ever. A shift toward fully digitalized joint fires, with the ability to swiftly target and deliver air power now sets the standard.

This year's agenda will focus on established and emerging technologies; placing emphasis on the needs of the soldier, both on the ground and in the air. Along with senior leadership from future capability development, operations and JTAC training, the conference will discuss the next generation of solutions currently being developed by the industry.

Featured topics from the agenda:

- German Armed Forces Strengthening of Close Air Support and Joint Fires
Colonel Dietmar Felber, Chief, Joint Fire Support and Indirect Fire Branch, Army Concepts and Capabilities Development Centre of the German Army
- Czech Armed Forces Advancement of Close Air Support Capability
Colonel Zdenek Bauer, Deputy Chief of Staff, Air Operations, Czech Air Force
- Developing Future NATO Forward Air Control Capabilities and Doctrine
Lieutenant Colonel James Krischke, Chief, Forward Air Control Capabilities Section, Air Command, NATO
- Air Land Integration and Digitalisation of Close Air Support within the French Air Force
Lieutenant Colonel Thierry Aguilar, Digitally Aided Close Air Support Program Officer, Fighter Equipment, French Air Force
- Current Approaches and Future Capabilities to Develop CloseAir Support within the Italian Air Force
Lieutenant Colonel Marco Ruggeri, 132nd SquadronCommander, 51st Wing, Italian Air Force

Five reasons to attend:

1. Deliberate the broad spectrum of capability areas for successfully CAS delivery, including air land integration, joint ISR and targeting, C2 and battle space management, JTAC and combat air training, platforms and precision munitions

2. Hear key updates from the UK, US, French, German, Italian, Netherlands, NATO and the Czech Armed Forces
3. Gain an insight into the technology enabling the next generation of close air support, examining advanced simulation, sensors, command and control and munitions at the heart of close air targeting and delivery
4. Examine live and synthetic close air support training with a dedicated pre-conference workshop covering future concepts and approaches to leveraging simulation
5. Cover requirements for the strengthening of interoperability within a coalition environment: Feedback from NATO Air Commands ongoing efforts as well as leading multi-national exercises, such as Ample Strike 2016/17
