

rent24 opens Germany's largest Coworking and Coliving Campus

BERLIN, GERMANY, February 20, 2017 /EINPresswire.com/ -- rent24 is opening Germany's largest coworking and coliving campus in Hamburg in 2018. The campus will combine living and working across 7,500 square metres. In the same building complex as a supermarket and fitness studio, rent24 will be opening coworking spaces as well as micro apartments for coliving. A food market on the ground floor will offer modern, healthy and international food.

'Our concept offers the ideal solution for the challenges and needs of our target group,' explains Robert Bukvic, founder and CEO of rent24 GmbH. The rent24 coworking concept is already targeting startups, entrepreneurs and established companies alike. The additional coliving concept will offer international professionals both flexibility and comfort. 'Many startups have to travel a lot and need as much flexibility as possible, as well as a transparent cost structure. That's exactly what we provide,' says Bukvic as one of the benefits.

The disused factory building is being completely renovated. The six floors will be split up into a coworking space with open work areas, private offices and event rooms, as well as different sized apartments for coliving. The bar and lounge area is open to all rent24 members, who also benefit from special perks when it comes to events and the food market. 'Our campus is the next logical step - welcome to Living and Working 4.0!'
