President and Founder*

Avacco is a Spanish company founded in 2002 which offers large and medium-sized organizations innovative and competitive IT products that meet the current and future requirements of its Clients, providing easy solutions to complex scenarios. Last month, the company decided to take a step further in its competitive strategy by joining DocPath's Partner network as a 'Certified Partner'. As such, DocPath's Output Management and document spooling software, which provides companies of any size and business area with the required functionalities to optimize their document processes and complement their ERP with advanced document generation, processing, distribution and print options, has been added to Avacco's product portfolio.

The agreement will, undoubtedly, increase DocPath's competitive edge in the European document software market and allows the company to enhance its support services in Spain, as Avacco contributes to the Partner agreement with more than 15 years of experience in IT project management, a solid client portfolio and numerous IT experts.

A Solid Partner Channel Program

In 2009, DocPath started its Partner Channel Program, based on frequent training courses and internal policies that regulate the commercial relationships with its Partners. The program is aimed at offering worldwide DocPath Clients more personalized document software solutions and services, as the Program allows DocPath to better meet the specific needs in Output Management and document spooling software of each Client. Currently, DocPath's Partner network consists of more than twenty Partners scattered across the globe, which confirms DocPath's influence in the international market of advanced document software solutions.
