

Attendee List Released for Superbugs 2017 Featuring FDA, GSK, MHRA, Merck and Abbott

Industry set to gather in just four weeks for 19th annual industry summit on antimicrobial resistance

LONDON, ENGLAND, UNITED KINGDOM, February 22, 2017 /EINPresswire.com/ -- With just 4 weeks to go, an attendee list featuring an international audience of AMR experts and scientific pioneers has been released ahead of SMI's long running 19th annual summit on Superbugs & Superdrugs.

The industry calendar highlight on antibiotic resistance will provide a platform for attendee's to network, exchange novel solutions and consolidate current strategy.

Notable sessions on the agenda include:

1. Guidance on common governing pitfalls presented by the FDA.
2. Strategies to enable drug discovery through identifying a novel class of broad spectrum antibacterials and statistical approaches in drug development.
3. 12+ hours of content on new innovations such as antimicrobial peptides and DNA topoisomerases.
4. A keynote to facilitate research from bench to bedside with a detailed spotlight on the latest government incentives and funding opportunities presented by the US governing body - BARDA.
5. Cutting edge progress through insight into both compound and non compound approaches from European case studies.
6. Insight into eradicating specific bacterial pathogens while sparing the beneficial microbiota in a keynote on sequence specific antimicrobials.

I find all the sessions relevant and interesting”

Martin Everett, Chief Scientific Officer, Antabio
