“Working as a Dale Carnegie trainer and business owner has been an opportunity of a lifetime, but it’s time for me to step back and make way for the next enthusiastic professional who is ready to start their own lucrative business career,” said Armstrong. “I have no doubt that, with the support of the Dale Carnegie Training franchise system, the person who fills the role of owner here in Westchester will be poised for a fulfilling Dale Carnegie career. “

After an impressive 30-year career as an independent business trainer, Armstrong joined Dale Carnegie seven years ago following her participation in the company’s flagship training course, Dale Carnegie’s Skills for Success. Armstrong admits that, prior to her participation, she hadn’t realized the transformative power of a Dale Carnegie Training course, and learned quickly as a franchisee how the program truly changes people’s lives.

Now, as she shifts into the role of advisor and mentor to Westchester’s new owner-operator, Armstrong looks forward to supporting the business’ growth alongside the rich and established Dale Carnegie infrastructure located in and around the territory.

“Ann did a great job of serving as an authentic brand ambassador for Dale Carnegie here in Westchester County and we’re looking forward to her continued dedication to our brand,” said John Covilli, senior vice president of franchising. “We’re confident that the person who succeeds Ann to become the next owner of Dale Carnegie Training in this area will have the ongoing support and mentoring they’ll need to provide the same quality service to businesses looking for guidance.”

Dale Carnegie Training has evolved from one man’s belief in the power of self_improvement to a performance_based training company with hundreds of offices worldwide, with courses presented in more than 30 languages. The franchise gives people in business the opportunity to sharpen their skills and improve their performance in order to build positive, steady and profitable results.
