

Pacific Coast Wrestling® and The Crash Lucha Libre Announce Partnership

West Coast Promotions to Share Talent, Resources

LOS ANGELES, CA, USA, March 1, 2017 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Los Angeles-based professional wrestling promotion, Pacific Coast Wrestling® (PCWTM), formally announced its new partnership with Mexico's The Crash Lucha Libre. The two promotions will share talent and resources to provide their fans and their talent with the best matches and best events on the independent wrestling scene.

“Our strategic alliance with The Crash presents good business benefits to both promotions,” commented PCW booker, Joseph Cabibbo. “The fact that we can now offer the talent a double booking with two professional companies (Friday and Saturday), with great opponents translating into greater matches, a full house of rabid vocal fans and a professional atmosphere makes the entire deal more attractive to the wrestlers and will enable us to get the top talent from all over the world.” Cabibbo continued, “Also, because we are in such close proximity of one another, it’s easier and safer travel for the wrestlers, as they can make the travel by car rather than another flight. With our companies being close enough that a working relationship is easily doable yet far enough away that it doesn’t hurt either company’s potential to draw fans.”

We made a commitment early that we were focused on the fans and the wrestlers. If the fans and the wrestlers are both happy with our promotion, we will be successful.”

PCW Owner, Mike Scharnagl

PCW owner Mike Scharnagl commented, “We made a commitment early that we were focused on the fans and the wrestlers. If the fans and the wrestlers are both happy with our promotion, we will be successful. Being connected to The Crash is going to elevate the wrestling talent on both shows and the fans will love it!”
