Market Research Future

Market Highlights
The world whole milk powder consumption during the period 2011-2015 has grown at the rate of 3.6%, with major consumers being China, Argentina, Chile, European countries and Algeria. In the recent years, China has emerged as a major importer of whole milk powder with growing demand for consumption and industrial applications.

Increase in demand for convenience products and shortage of milk in different regions has driven higher demand for whole milk powder. Growing versatility across various applications including coffee whiteners, infant formula, chocolates, milk beverages and bakery products etc. has supported the market. Due to its nutritional value, whole milk powder has mainly gained traction from the infant formulas.
