

Push Cares: Giving Back to the Local Community

Push Operations donates 70 individualized gifts for 70 deserving children in the Strathcona Community.

VANCOUVER, BC, CANADA, March 6, 2017
/EINPresswire.com/ -- Vancouver, BC, [March 6th 2017] – Driven by the desire to be community change makers, Push Operations, a workforce management solutions provider for the restaurant industry, recently participated in a local community initiative.

As an advocate of self-development, one of Business Success Manager Tina Lum's lifelong goals is to inspire youth and children to dream big. "We exist to give back," said Tina and this holiday season, she aspired to give back to the local children's community. Enlisting the help of her brother James, an active member in Strathcona's youth basketball program, Tina and the team at Push sought out Strathcona's Holiday Safe Place program for low income children.

Strathcona's Holiday Safe Place program is for children who are vulnerable when school is not in session, and the Strathcona Community Centre acts as a child's home away from home. Under the leadership of Tina, the team at Push Operations put together 70 handwritten cards and goodie bags, along with hand-picked gifts from every child of the program's wish list. "For most children, this will be the only gift they receive," said retired recreating programmer Ron Suzuki, City of Vancouver Civic Merit Award recipient and active advocate for low-income families. He says "Push Operations shows how a local business can put something special back into their community!"
