Online financing is a method of debt financing where different individuals can lend and borrow money using an online platform. Such systems eliminate any involvement of middlemen or banking institutions. The loans provided by the lender help the lender to generate income in the form of interest. On the other hand, the borrowers have easy access to financing, which might be difficult for them to procure if they approach a standard financial intermediary. The amount of interest charged on the loans is comparatively lower than traditional prime loans, which are offered to compensate lenders for bearing the risk of non-payment from the borrowers. Investors fund only a portion of the loan and spread the amount of the loan across many buyers. The investors receive steady, attractive returns while spreading the risk across multiple borrowers. For example, the largest lending platform is in the US; Lending Club went public in December 2014 with a successful Initial Public Offering (IPO).
