Brett Hickey, CEO and Founder of Star Mountain Capital

"I am honored to be a part of the Milken Institute's 2017 Global Conference, which for 20 years has been an event not to be missed," said Brett Hickey. "It is a privilege to speak amongst the impressive list of participants from business, philanthropy, government, and more while being able to offer insight into some of the challenges and opportunities for emerging fund managers."

It is a privilege to speak amongst the impressive list of participants, while being able to offer insight into some of the challenges and opportunities for emerging fund managers”

Brett Hickey

The Milken Institute brings together individuals with the knowledge and resources to effect real change and help solve the world's most significant challenges. That is why the Global Conference convenes leaders from across sectors and industries: international investors who oversee an estimated $20 trillion in assets, CEOs and senior executives, members of the U.S. Congress and administration, non-U.S. government officials and heads of state, distinguished scientists, major philanthropists, university presidents and journalists from around the world.

Mr. Hickey is honored to collaborate with these distinguished thought leaders including, Jamie Dimon, Chairman and CEO of JP Morgan Chase & Co, Masayoshi

Son, Founder, Chairman and CEO of Softbank, Eric Schmidt, Executive Chairman of Alphabet, Tony James, President & Chief Operating Officer of Blackstone and David Rubenstein, Co-Founder and Co-CEO of The Carlyle Group to create long-term solutions to the complex problems facing today's financial markets.
