The 2017 show will bring back lively debates and industry updates to London, offering the best platform for delegates to stay in touch with the latest developments in this market. The two-day programme will feature an array of case studies, which will detail the results and progress made from some of the largest UK and European smart water system roll-outs. The conference will also address the ongoing issue regarding water shortage and will have a special focus on using psychology and behavioural techniques learnt from the data gathered to allow water companies to encourage and educate their consumers to use water more efficiently.

The event agenda also includes a post-conference workshop hosted by Water Industry Process Automation and Control Group, Anglian Water, Aquamatrix, Microvi and Hach Lange on “The fundamentals of Data & Information in the Smart Water Industry”. The workshop will provide case studies of the use of data in driving informed decision making and efficient operation.

Latest registered attendees include: Advizzo, Aguas de Alicante, Anglian Water, Aquametro AG, Bristol Water plc, CMI Balteau, Diehl Metering, Elster, Energy Saving Trust, Gutermann Limited, IBM Global Services, Irish Water, Jersey Water, Kamstrup, KERLINK, Korean University, Mace Group, Northumbrian Water, Oxera, Schneider Electric, Scottish Government, Scottish Water, Sensus UK Systems Ltd, Severn Trent Water, South East Water, South Staffs Waterá, South West Water, Southern Water, Suez Advanced Solutions, Sutton & East Surrey Water Plc, Thames Water, Trimble water, United Utilities Plc, University of Exeter, VCS Denmark, Veolia Water U K, Veolia, Water Industry Process Automation & Control Group (WIPAC), Waterbriefing, WaterSmart Software, Welsh Water.
