PALO ALTO, CALIFORNIA, UNITED STATES, April 15, 2017

/EINPresswire.com/ -- Palo Alto, CA, April 15, 2017 - The upcoming Turkish Referendum, which is a battle between a parliamentary republic and executive presidency, has created a climate of extreme uncertainty in the country. Real estate professionals and consumers are afraid that the both the country and it's economy will suffer as a result of this referendum. Global Real Estate Licence, the provider of online real estate education & technology solutions, has announced to give an exclusive discount of 25% on all of their licence editions to express our support with Turkish real estate market and the professionals working in it.

The latest announcement from GREL comes in wake of the environment created by the current situation which is responsible for a lot of confusion.

“Both real estate consumers and investors are scared of what’s coming next, they have a lot of questions which need to be answered by agents in the country” says Tariq Khursheed, CEO of GREL. “We have launched this campaign to express our support for the real estate industry and professionals of Turkey. We want to help them keep their business and expand it because in uncertain times, clients look for the expert and we want to play our role in creating those experts. ”

Turkey is the bridge between the east and the west and as such Turkish real estate market is extremely important. GREL has launched this campaign for all real estate professionals in the country to show support to the Turkish community and the situation they find themselves in. Through these licence editions, agents, investors, and developers will get access to both training, tools, and work on developing the right skill set they need to grow their business and excel in their careers. They can avail the discount available on GREL licence editions by using the promo code: Turkey25.
