Description

These supplements include creams, gels, and sprays that are available in a variety of flavors and colors in the market, and sold through online and retail outlets. Here, the internet plays a major role in driving the market growth. It not only gives buyers access to a broad range of sexual enhancement supplements, but it also helps supplements providers to increase sales opportunity by connecting sellers and buyers on a single platform. Previously, online penetration was very low in most of the emerging countries like China, India, and Indonesia; developed countries like the US and the UK had been seeing relatively high penetration rate. However, in the last five years, India and China have witnessed extraordinary rise in online shopping, which has resulted in enormous sales of sexual enhancement supplements.
