

History Publishing Company Unveils Female Terrorist in New Fiction Imprint

Tehran backed terror group in America rushes to secure financing for terror plans in U.S. by seizing huge gold and silver trove from expedition in Mexico.

PALISADES, NEW YORK, USA, April 24, 2017

/EINPresswire.com/ -- History Publishing Company continues its expansion into fiction with the upcoming release of "Holy Cause: Target America" Authored by Rena Winters, "Holy Cause: Target America" is the story of modern day terrorism colliding with old fashioned ambition, both factors led by accomplished women with a no-holds barred attitude toward achieving success. Include Tehran, Hamas, Hezbollah, a sleeper cell in the U.S., a gold cache sequestered by Hernando Cortes in 1595, and you have the basic components for a contemporary novel for History Publishing Company's new fast moving fiction imprint "Today's Titles."

And fast moving it is. Terror operatives under the control of Tehran are reacting to the new pressure being put upon them by the new American President's support of Israel. To counter that pressure, Tehran has ordered Hamas to increase its intensity on Israel, and Hezbollah to generate tumult and terror in South America. Financing to the underfunded "Winds of Change" terror group in America must be remedied by its own initiative. To help to that end, Tehran assigns a beautiful, accomplished former Colonel in Russia's KGB, ruthless and calculating, to help. She is sent to the American terror group specifically to aid in the intercession of an expedition in Mexico headed by a driven young woman to a site established by Hernando Cortes for the storage of gold and silver mined by Indians in 1595.

Rena Winters has written a fast moving novel in the tradition of Patricia Highsmith and Ira Levin”
