PUNE, INDIA, April 24, 2017

/EINPresswire.com/ -- Summary

Although Germany is the largest market for cigarettes in Western Europe it has one of the smallest smokeless tobacco markets. Smokeless tobacco currently accounts for only 1.2% of the whole tobacco market as consumers prefer traditional cigarettes and cigars. Nevertheless, the market is well established in Germany due to its proximity to Scandinavian countries to the north but is not popular among young adults. In addition to this, new EU tobacco directives are expected to enforce stricter anti-smokeless tobacco regulations, which will create a tough environment for manufacturers in the long term.
