/EINPresswire.com/ -- Savvier Health, LLC is pleased to announce that NewsWatch TV featured its unique mobile app creation website, Appsilike.net, on its May 1, 2017 show, which aired on the AMC Channel nationwide.

Apps I Like (AppsLike.net) uses a simple what-you-see-is-what-you-get format to allow subscribers to easily exchange standard text and pictures with their own in hundreds of ready-to-publish mobile app templates. Anyone who can use a home computer has the potential to copy, paste and write his way into a piece of the explosive international app market that has made its share of millionaires, or simply use Appsilike.net to create a library of private apps for personal use that can be updated and synced on demand.

CNN Money named mobile app developer the #1 job for 2017.”

CNN Money

With AppsLike.net subscribers simply choose from hundreds of templates, change the text and pictures, write a brief description of their app and upload store icons. Then they simply click a button to transform their file into a real app that can be uploaded to the AppStore, Google Play or Amazon/Kindle. While not everyone is computer savvy, AppsLike.net provides numerous step-by-step tutorials to help even the most skeptical subscribers create stunning apps with little effort.

This vast platform has something for everyone. CNN Money named mobile app development the #1 job for 2017, and AppsLike.net provides anyone with drive and ambition to become a part of the booming multi-billion dollar mobile app industry, with no coding experience needed.

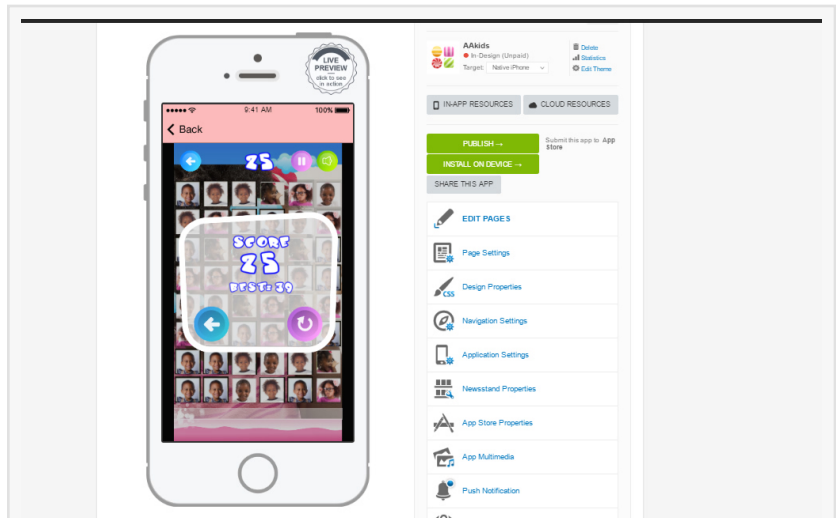

Entrepreneurs can have their own mobile app creation business up and running within days with the business level subscription which allows them to create unlimited mobile apps for clients, friends, and even themselves. Basic template categories include business, design & portfolio, entertainment, events & causes, sports, E-commerce, digital publishing, locations & places, music & band, restaurant & bar, game apps and a variety of blank/miscellaneous apps. In addition, there are over a hundred features that can subscribers can mix and match to create a one of a kind app time and time again.

While AppsILike.net's mobile app building platform is easy enough for the average high school student to master using the many step-by-step tutorials, every subscriber can request a dedicated project manager, at no additional charge. Instead of contacting a different technical support person with each question, a dedicated project manager makes learning how to churn out elaborate apps seamless. The learning curve is surprisingly short and the revenue potential huge. Users can also purchase add-on services, such as an introductory video or creative HTML coding for an even higher level of customization.

In addition, Appsilike.net is part of the Share-A-Sale affiliate program family. It is free to sign up to become an affiliate and no experience is needed. Affiliates simply add their computer generated link, containing their affiliate identification number to their social media pages, websites, and even e-mails and earn recurring monthly commissions on their referrals.
