

Vreasy announces a new direct connection with Booking.com

Vreasy managers can now connect to Booking.com via our direct API connection

AUSTIN, TEXAS, USA , June 14, 2017 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Vacation rental and guest experience platform Vreasy has announced a new, direct connection to Booking.com. This connection allows vacation rental managers to push availability and prices instantly, across all of their properties.

Vreasy and Booking.com now gives vacation rental managers the power to market their properties to millions of monthly travellers, in over 190 countries. Combining Vreasy's guest experience platform and the marketing reach of Booking.com means that property managers now have the ultimate tool to promote their properties and travel brands to the world.

Describing their API, Booking.com said,

Our partners generate more incremental business via our platform. That's why we've created a scalable solution that helps PMCs and other providers list dozens or even thousands of properties on Booking.com more quickly and at no cost.

Following a successful beta-testing phase, vacation rental managers can now connect their properties and start receiving bookings in their calendars.

Vreasy CEO, Martin Picard said:

We're delighted to be able to give our clients a direct connection to one of the world's most powerful vacation rental booking platforms. It represents a huge step forward for us, and each one of our clients.

Vreasy is a new way to manage vacation rentals. Their management calendar, guest communication platform and e-concierge app gives vacation rental managers the power to provide 5 star vacation rental experiences to every guest. With this new connection, Vreasy's guest-focused vacation rental management platform is ready to change the way we think about a short term rental.
