AISIN SEIKI North America is a company based in Japan with North American headquarters located in Seymour, Indiana. The company is the fifth-largest tier one automotive supplier worldwide with 166 consolidated companies and 30 domestic companies in manufacturing, sales and R&D.

“AISIN was established in North America in 1970 and has grown to become a trusted systems and components supplier and a valuable partner to the community,” said Scott Turpin, President of AISIN North America.

“As the remarkable auto industry takes on new and exciting challenges in mobility and automated driving, AISIN is positioned to lead new frontiers and new thinking.”

GreenLeaf Industries, one of the few plastic injection molders in the world using 100% electric machinery, has an impressive collection of custom plastic injection molding samples including several samples from the automotive industry.

“Most people don’t know that air vents, cup holders, plastic radio knobs and other custom plastic car parts are all created by using plastic injection molds. GreenLeaf is proud to help supply these parts to automotive companies and is passionate about bringing automotive manufacturing back to the United States,” said Lawrence Segrest, CEO of GreenLeaf Industries.

The award for Delivery performance at GreenLeaf Industries recognizes efforts in ensuring superior custom plastic parts and customer satisfaction, but also its dedication to delivering products when and where they are needed.
