Aloe Vera Extract Market 2017

Aloe-Vera is a one of the succulent plant species which grows suitably in tropical climatic conditions. Cultivation of aloe-vera plant is primarily done for medicinal and agricultural uses all over the world. An aloe-vera plant generates two substances i.e. gel and latex. Aloe-vera gel is one of the healthiest parts of the aloe-vera plant and is extracted from leaf's inner layer and can be used in its raw form. However, aloe-vera latex is a yellowish fluid which is not recommended for direct consumption.

Aloe-vera extracts find its major applications in cosmetics, pharmaceuticals, and food & beverage industry across the globe.

Global aloe-vera extracts market is anticipated to expand from USD 1,528.5 Million in 2015 to USD 2,344.2 Million in 2021, exhibiting a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of more than seven percent.
