The Asia-Pacific Hospital Bed market has been analyzed as growing market in the coming future and it is expected that the market will have high demand in this region. The Hospital Bed market is undergoing a rapid change. Present discussions and reports have brought into examination's the competence of existing regulatory frameworks for medical furniture/devices in developing regions to guarantee the performance, quality and safety. Medical furniture/device regulation must be enhanced and improved to safeguard public/patient health and ensure that effective technologies and high-quality products reach patients. The growing number and features of medical furniture have introduced regulatory challenges. These challenges differ from the types of hospital beds, commonly there are three types of hospital bed which require medical approvals and these are classified into type standard bed, manual bed, hydraulic bed and electric bed. These beds are differentiated on the basis of features and power of use and difficulties involved while using. Further one of the major usage or the major functioning areas of hospital beds is to monitor patients with critical care, chronic diseases, severity and conditions of the disease, age of the people and pregnant women and children under the age group of 5 years and 10 years. Therefore, if the current trends in prevalence in diseases and growing population continues over the coming years, the number of patients would be tremendous after a decade. This will increase the demand of hospital beds. Furthermore the demand for the maintenance and servicing for the product will grow.
